FarmResponse is a three-and-a-half-hour (3.5) continuing education module developed by national experts from the AgriStress Response Network. The FarmResponse course addresses farm and ranching cultural issues, financial stress, land ownership and legacy issues, and the work of agriculture. This knowledge is critical for a healthcare professional to effectively care for a farmer's total health (health of the body and mind). FarmResponse improves cultural competencies and understanding of the stressors affecting agricultural producers, workers, and their families for hotline, emergency, primary care, acute care, and behavioral healthcare professionals.
